Bringing Recovery Supports to Scale

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE CENTER STRATEGY

Steven Samra, MPA, is a senior associate at the Center for Social Innovation and serves as deputy director for SAMHSA's Bringing Recovery Supports to Scale Technical Assistance Center Strategy (BRSS TACS). He has served in leadership capacities for SAMHSA for the Housing and Homelessness Resource Network (HHRN), Projects for Assistance in Transition from Homelessness (PATH), and Services in Supportive Housing (SSH), and has led numerous peer involvement initiatives. Mr. Samra brings expertise in harm reduction approaches, substance use and mental health recovery, peer leadership, criminal justice, cultural competence, and effective outreach and engagement for challenging populations. After entering recovery in 1999 from homelessness, complex trauma, substance use, criminal justice involvement, and mental health challenges, Mr. Samra began medication-assisted treatment (MAT) in 2000 for a severe and chronic opioid addiction. He discharged from the MAT program under medical supervision on February 13, 2014 and has dedicated his career to assisting and advocating for marginalized, disenfranchised populations. He lives in Nashville, Tennessee, where he co-founded a street newspaper, The Contributor, and serves as an appointed commissioner on the Nashville Metropolitan Homelessness Commission. Mr. Samra also serves on the CABHI Statewide Homelessness Task Force in Tennessee.
